Local Terry Fox run sets record

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

It was a banner year for Minden.

This year's Terry Fox Run raised nearly $18,000, far surpassing the last year's record total of close to $14,000 raised last year.

"It was a good day," event organizer Diane Peacock said. "I just can't believe the people of this county. I've got to say the whole county because there were people from all over."

This year there were 208 participants who biked, ran or walked up to 10 kilometres. Last year there were a record 231 participants.

Peacock couldn't explain the fundraising record total for the 18th installment for Minden, inferring it may have had something to do with honouring the memory of Terry Fox's mother, Betty. She died this year on June 17.

"Usually the year after a big year you're down a bit," she said.

However there was more effort in promotion of the event through the various free avenues, even adding a Facebook page, she said.

Peacock has been helping with the event since 2000. She has been running it with support from the Minden Terry Fox Run Committee since 2007.

"It's a disease that affects everybody. It doesn't [discriminate by] age," she said, adding her inspiration for her involvement has been her great niece Victoria Peacock of Ennismore. Victoria was diagnosed with kidney cancer at nine months old and had her kidney removed in 2008. She is seven and a survivor.

Twenty local businesses donated items to the silent auction that helped to raise $1,667.

The event featured music from the County String Dusters. An entire board of honour featured all the people the run has been dedicated to since dedications began in 2005.

This year's run was dedicated to Gala Stamp, Opal Crowe and Irv Mandel.

There are more than 9,000 Terry Fox Runs every year, which are all volunteer-led and organized. The Terry Fox Foundation has raised more than $550 million for cancer research worldwide. This has contributed to 1,180 cancer research projects. This was the 31st year for the national Terry Fox Run.

Minden resident Tracey Brown, left, takes a high five from stilt walker Ed Litwin at the 18th Terry Fox Run hosted by Minden on Sunday, Sept. 18. This was Brown's 10th year participating in the event, which has raised close to $180,000 in 18 years. More photos on page 17. Darren Lum Times staff Vandalism to a particular gravestone at the Minden cemetery off Bobcaygeon Road is persisting.

In addition to some 12 acts of vandalism carried out since July, Minden Hills community services director Rick Cox said recently a dead rodent was left on the grave and that more liquid plastic has been poured on the headstone.

Anyone who sees any suspicious activity at the cemetery is asked to call Cox at 705-286-1936, ext. 201, Const. Neville at Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment at 705-286-1431 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS. Crimestoppers also takes tips online at <http://www.khcs.ca>.

As I neared the middle of August my friends and colleagues noticed that I was quieter than usual.

After a bit of self-reflection I came to the conclusion that I was going through the same angst that any parent experiences when a child is leaving home.

Over Labour Day weekend we moved our daughter to Queen's University to start the next chapter of her life.

This transition seems to be much more difficult for me than for her.

I was wondering if the Haliburton County Public Library and any books dealing with this subject that might be of use to me.

I found two recent publications that I would like to read.

over the past couple of weeks. This scam, which is wide-spread and well documented on the Internet, involves taking legitimate Canadian currency and placing it between this white or negative money in order to transfer the currency colouring onto the paper to make it positive.

The fraudster gains the confidence by turning out the lights and then by shining an ultraviolet light source on the white money. It reveals that the paper is embossed and appears to be a legitimate Canadian bank note without colour.

By asking the intended victim for a $50 bill, it is placed in a bag with a liquid and black powder and then pressure is applied to the bag. Afterwards, the two pieces of blackened paper are removed from the bag; the fraudster then puts on a pair of rubber gloves to wash the bills and shows the money to the unsuspecting victim. This elaborate scheme was used recently in the City of Orillia and the unsuspecting victims were almost defrauded of a very large amount of money.

As a result of OPP investigation, on Sept. 14, a 37-year-old man from Oshawa was arrested and charged with attempted fraud over $5,000 and attempted theft over $5,000.

The OPP are asking the public to be aware of this latest fraudulent scam that appears to have made its way into our area. In this case, the intended victims did not lose any money, but other victims have not been so fortunate. Remember, if it sounds too good to be true, then it likely is.

Fines issued over violations at quarry

Fines have been leveled against two Minden-area men for violations relating to a limestone quarry in Galway-Cavendish-Harvey.

Ministry of Natural Resources staff investigated the Johnston limestone quarry in the fall of 2009 and identified operating procedures that violated the Aggregate Resources Act, which governs pit and quarry operations and their effect on the environment.

A further investigation showed false information was provided on annual compliance assessment reports.

A trial was held Sept. 8 in Ontario Court of Justice in Peterborough. Justice of the Peace Carl Young rendered the sentence.

Mervin Johnston, owner of Mervin Johnston Forestry and Limestone Products in Minden pleaded guilty and was fined $5,000. Johnston also made a donation of $20,000 to the outdoor education program at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Dennis Simmons, owner of Dennis C. Simmons Development and Land Management Services in Irondale pleaded guilty to providing false information on the annual compliance assessment reports and was fined a total of $4,000.

Researcher wins prestigious scholarship

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

U-Links researcher Emma Horrigan has won a prestigious scholarship. Horrigan, who started as a community researcher with Minden's U-Links Centre for Community-Based Research in the spring, is the recent recipient of a W. Garfield Weston Award for Northern Research, an award for master's and PhD students who demonstrate academic excellence and leadership in northern research.

In the case of Horrigan, who has a master's degree in plant and microbial biology from the University of Toronto, that research is on snow geese and the negative effects of their growing numbers on the arctic's ecosystem.

Essentially, an abundance of corn in the U.S. that the geese feed on their migratory path is creating a snow geese population with less mortality and that is having negative consequences on plant life in the Arctic.

The snow geese are helping to destroy their own habitat.

Horrigan first travelled to the far north to do research a number of years ago.

"Once you get up there, it's addicting," she said, explaining that the summer months in Churchill, Man. are actually much warmer than people might think.

Horrigan's visits have been during the long, long days of summer and not the infamous short and dark days of winter.

"Churchill is quite a unique spot for a number of reasons," she said, explaining that it sits in the transitional zone between boreal forest and tundra and that beluga whales and polar bears are a common sight.

In late summer, Horrigan attended the grand opening of the Churchill Northern Studies Centre, an environmentally engineered research and dorm facility for northern scientists.

She said it was a wonderful experience, especially since Bob Jefferies, a recently deceased and highly acclaimed Arctic researcher who oversaw Horrigan's master's work, was recognized.

Horrigan will be using the money from the award to continue her research.

Tests results improve at Archie Stouffer Elementary School

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Reading, writing and arithmetic are still the staples by which the province measures the success of its schools and in Minden, Archie Stouffer Elementary School seems to be on a path of constant improvement.

The results of the 2010-2011 EQAO (Education Quality and Accountability Office) tests – taken by Grade 3 and Grade 6 students – were released last week.

For the period of 2009 to 2011, 63 per cent of Stouffer's Grade 3 students ranked above the provincial average in reading.

This is an improvement from 52 per cent for the period of 2007 to 2009.

In writing, that percentage has risen from 61 in the 2007 to 2009 period to 69 in 2009 to 2011 and in math, from 64 to 71 per cent. Haliburton's Stuart Baker Elementary School, the percentage of Grade 3s above the provincial average in reading rose from 66 to 73; in writing from 68 to 84; and from 71 to 81 in math.

For the Grade 6 students at Stouffer, the percentage of students above the provincial average in reading rose from 66 per cent in the 2007 to 2009 period to 78 per cent in reading; 57 to 65 in writing; and 47 to 61 per cent in mathematics.

The trend has been opposite at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, with the percentage of Grade 6 students above the average for reading dropping from 70 to 64 per cent during the same time period; from 55 to 51 per cent in writing; and from 52 to 48 per cent in math.

An aptitude test for Grade 3 students showed that 43 per cent liked to write "most of the time" and that 46 per cent liked to write "some of the time."

Forty-six per cent of them liked reading "most of the time" and 46 per cent also liked reading "some of the time."

There were 28 Grade 3 students in two classes at Stouffer last year and 50 Grade 6 students in three classes.

"I am very pleased with the ASES EQAO results for the 2010-2011 school year," principal Traci Hubbert told the paper. "Our school results for all six areas are above the Trillium

Lakelands DSB average. The teachers and students at ASES worked hard to teach and learn the curriculum over the year and their hard work has paid off with such positive results."

Hubbert said standardized testing helps schools to identify the areas where they are doing well and areas where they can improve and help the board and school administration what types of professional development might be most effective.

EQAO results across the Trillium Lakelands School

Board were better than they've ever been, according to a press release from the board, with the board as whole met or exceeded the provincial average in seven out of eight categories.

Master storyteller visits Minden Hills

➤ Acclaimed Toronto Star columnist Joe Fiorito talks memoir writing at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Joe Fiorito says life washes over us like a great wave and that some of us are swept under while others are swept upward.

It seems that Fiorito has been swept upward.

A Toronto Star columnist who's written for all the country's major papers at one time or another, Fiorito was at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre on Sept. 12 to talk about writing as part of this year's R.D. Lawrence Literary Festival.

Specifically, Fiorito was there to talk about memoir writing since R.D. Lawrence Place is putting on a series of workshops on the subject and since his memoir, The Closer We Are to Dying, was a critical success.

"I'm inclined toward non-fiction because I don't have a very good imagination," Fiorito, whose wit and demeanour made it clear right from the start that he was an excellent storyteller, told a crowd of some 40 people assembled in the centre's common room.

Fiorito said there were three main reasons he got into writing.

"The first reason is Davey Crocket."

He told a story from his childhood in which he and other neighbourhood children befriended one kid since his parents could afford to buy a Davey Crocket hat.

"Nobody played with this kid, because nobody liked him," Fiorito explained. "But he had the damn hat."

Turns out one of the children had some kind of scalp disease and when Fiorito caught it, he was forced to stay home from school for the entirety of Grade 2.

Finishing his homework at a quick pace, Fiorito turned to his parents' book collection to keep himself amused.

"All I could do during that entire period of confinement was read," he said.

Fiorito spoke candidly about his father being an abusive drinker.

"In a family like that, one person is the watcher," he said, explaining it had become his job to watch for the signs to judge his dad's mood and so picked up a knack for noticing detail.

Finally, growing up in a large, Italian family, Fiorito said he'd learned early on that telling a story with a beginning, middle and end was a sure way to get adult attention.

Years later, Fiorito found himself by the hospital bed of his dying father, who'd been a masterful storyteller.

"I knew I wasn't going to hear those stories again," Fiorito said, explaining he'd spent several days pumping him for anecdotes. "I'd make him tell me stories."

Those family stories – including one involving murder – became the basis for his book and Fiorito admitted it had drawn wrath from some of his family members.

"Write it as cold as possible and as straight-forward as possible," was his advice to potential memoir-writers in the crowd, urging them to leave personal griping out. "Readers are really selfish. They don't give a sh-- about you. I would say be careful. I would also say don't stop."

A poetry reading from Kennisis Lake-based poet and songwriter Lea Harper preceded Fiorito's talk.

Local country band releases CD

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

The Hot Flashes and Cold Shoulders have released their first album. The local country band debuted Just Us Live – a collection of classic country songs recorded live off the floor – at a jamboree at the Minden Hills Community Centre earlier this month.

Consisting of Wendy Connelly on guitar and vocals, Linda Robertson on guitar and vocals, Doris Robertson on keyboards, Betty Hicks on vocals and mandolin, Don Stiver on pedal steel guitar and vocals and Kelly Jordan on bass, mandolin and vocals, the band travelled to Toronto's Studio 92 in late June to record the album.

"Everything that's on that . . . it's all us," Stiver says proudly, explaining the group used no professional studio musicians or digital gadgetry.

They laid down all 13 songs – including such notables as George Jones's The Old, Old House and Hank Williams's Cheatin' Heart – in single day, performing just two takes of each.

Hicks played her parts perfectly.

"Betty nailed hers every time," Stiver says.

The band got its start some 12 years ago as the Country Hot Flashes when its female members began playing at local nursing homes.

And the name?

"Don't you have a mother?" Connelly laughs.

Linda explains that when the women started playing nursing homes, they would sometimes get overheated, unsure if it was because of the thermostat or because they were at a certain point in their lives.

The name was suggested by a nursing home resident.

The male members of the groups, who joined later, comprise the "Cold Shoulders."

The band still plays regular shows at old-age homes in the county and areas south such as Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls and Lindsay.

For most members, country music has been a lifelong love.

"I was raised on it," Hicks says.

Doris remembers her father coming into the house to find the kids listening to country songs on their battery-powered radio.

"He'd come up and grab us and dance us around the floor," she says.

The one exception might be Jordan, who Stiver describes as "an old rocker."

However, it seems he's made a pretty seamless transition to the world of country.

"At my age, it's just my speed," Jordan says.

They've printed 200 copies of their CD, which are going quickly.

To get one, visit the Canoe FM station in Haliburton, email lindamuggins@hotmail.com or call Hicks at 705-286-2029.

The band plays regular jamborees at the Minden Hills Community Centre, which raise money for the local Lioness Club.

The next one will be held on Nov. 13.

There is an open mic where anyone who wishes can get up and play a few songs with the band.

On headhunting

FIRST, I OFFER my apologies. This is a week late. Due to our deadlines, I was unable to comment on the undertaking of a second professional recruiter by Minden Hills council in last week's edition.

The special meeting where the call for tenders was approved fell on a Tuesday, the same day the Minden Times goes to press.

Winning an election is not the end of anything.

It is the beginning of something.

Politicians have an obligation to listen to their constituents, not just during election campaigns, but also throughout the entirety of their terms.

The decision by the governing majority of Minden Hills council to hire a headhunter to seek a new clerk at last week's meeting was made in the face of public opposition to the previous hiring of a headhunter for $21,000 to find a replacement for the township's former property manager.

Of the letters to the editor and comments on the paper's website that decision garnered, few have been supportive of the recruiter concept.

Spending what will likely amount to more than $40,000 on consultants to find "suitable" candidates for two positions for a township with a permanent population of 5,500 is a complete squandering of taxpayers' money, especially when some members of council have argued there were qualified people deemed insufficient by the township's politically loaded personnel committee.

One member of the governing majority of council said the hiring of headhunters was a practice common in the business world and in some municipalities.

While that may be true, the reality is such a practice is simply not affordable for a township as small as Minden Hills.

Some municipalities have subways, streetcars and bus systems.

Can Minden Hills afford those things?

If the governing majority of Minden Hills council is so intent on hiring a recruiter to find a new clerk, it should at least wait until it can point to the successful recruitment of a new property manager as proof its method is working.

Otherwise, it just appears its members are pushing through a predetermined agenda with little or no regard for public opinion.

Democracy Minden Hills style

To the Editor,

On Tuesday, Sept. 13, I attended a special meeting of the Minden Hills council. The purpose was to discuss the hiring of a recruiter to fill the position of clerk/ economic development officer. The recruiter would cost about $20,000. Each councillor spoke to the motion expressing his or her view. One said it was ridiculous to hire a recruiter when three councillors plus the CAO had already approved the hiring of an applicant who they thought qualified for the clerk's job before the second position of economic development was added to the job description. Another said it was irresponsible to spend $20,000 when the reeve ran on a platform of fiscal responsibility. Another asked how often had other councils needed to hire a

Embarrassed for town

To the Editor,

I attended last Tuesday's council meeting at the community centre and came out embarrassed for our town.

The lack of professionalism on the part of our reeve was appalling! At one point the usual 3-3 vote went to her for a tie breaker. Her comment to the people was "are you ready everyone?" then a pause and then said "yes," with a laugh. I personally do not think this attitude is acceptable from our reeve.

At the end of the meeting during question time her comment to the people was, "you know what folks, it is what it is. If you don't like it, you will have an opportunity to change it in 2014. For now this is how things are going to go. You might not like it, but you have to deal with it."

The money that has been spent so far since the new council has been in is awful.

Tears are not enough

JUST WHEN YOU thought it was safe to talk to strangers, someone announces that they've grown a 17-pound, 15-ounce onion. The huge bulb, which was grown and showcased in the United Kingdom, was recently pronounced a world record. And, as you would expect, there wasn't a dry eye in the house.

All kidding aside, this incredible story has huge international implications. For one thing, an onion like that, in the wrong hands, could be used for evil. Imagine, if you will, some sociopath eating the whole thing raw, then stepping onto a crowded bus and introducing himself to everyone on board.

Or how about a terrorist sleeper cell frying up a pair of these giant onions at a Tea Party rally? Suddenly, the news cameras would be filming hundreds of tea partiers crying real tears, thereby giving the world the false perception that they actually have feelings, just like you and me.

This could lead to voters taking their candidates a little more seriously and, before you know it, the theory of evolution is banned, English would be declared the world's only official language and Jesus would be forced to take the wheel – at gun point.

That's not the worst of it either.

If the terrorists get wise to the havoc that one large onion can wreak, they'll soon start experimenting with other potentially devastating vegetarian weapons. It's the next logical step.

I suspect that, even now, they are planning a daring kidnapping attempt on Peter Glazebrook, the gardener who grew the great onion.

If they succeed, they'll probably whisk him to a secret gardening complex hidden deep in a mountain valley along the Afghan-Pakistani border. Once there, they will order him to grow four-pound beans and huge cauliflowers.

It doesn't take a tactical genius to envision what's next.

I shudder at the thought of hundreds of terrorists simultaneously unleashed upon the crowded aircraft, marketplaces and elevators of the world, after having just consumed a bowl or two of gigantic baked beans with a side-dish of cauliflower and cheese sauce. Once this happens, we're just one raised cheek and a lit match away from a society that operates largely without eyebrows and a sense of smell.

Make no mistake; this is the kind of biological warfare that could easily bring a country to wave a white flag, if only to clear the air.

So, you have to ask yourself, what's the point of all this? I mean what practical use is a huge onion until someone grows oversized beef livers or creates a frying pan that all this stuff can fit in? The answer, of course, is not much.

All this just goes to show you that we shouldn't be messing around with the natural scheme of things. Yes, give me my genetically modified apples any day.

Plastic bags and plastic money

LESSONS LEARNED from an afternoon selling my book, Cell Phones and Sap Buckets, amidst the hurly-burly at the outlet of a bank of supermarket checkouts:

Lesson One: If Haliburton County has not become a cashless society quite yet, it is getting there.

Lesson Two: Most everybody brings along cloth bags to carry home their groceries. I am one of a shrinking gang of environmental outlaws.

Given our status as the poorest county in the province, cashless might mean a shortage of money in any form for too many working people, but in this case cashless refers to the absence of paper money.

It's difficult to imagine now, but a generation ago the idea of allowing folks to pay for their food with credit cards was controversial. It caused an uproar in the House of Commons, as I recall.

The grocers and the credit-card companies beat a strategic retreat and, somewhere along the way, they tried again and nobody noticed, including me.

First time round, I joined in the general indignation and now it is difficult to remember why it was morally wrong for people to get themselves in debt buying a non-essential like groceries.

Paying 21 per cent interest to buy things they really needed, like a restaurant dinner, why, there was nothing wrong with that!

Last Saturday afternoon, it seemed as though almost every loaf of pumpernickel checked through the till was paid for with the swipe of a card, whether credit or debit. Nobody who swiped plastic was struck dead on the spot for their sin.

Evidently only a handful of Luddites like me still use folding currency as their medium of exchange. The rest of the world no longer depends on the social contract that attaches value to otherwise worthless bits of paper.

Mostly the pumpernickel wound up in the fashionable cloth bags of environmentally-correct shoppers. Well, perhaps not so much environmentally-correct as aware of how bad you look, bringing home your vittles in plastic bags that might live forever in the local landfill.

Cloth bags are meant to save the planet, but The Brown Dog Jiggs and I agree that they are a badge of green hypocrisy, a false reassurance for smug shoppers.

Drifting aimlessly in the breeze across a parking lot or come to rest in the weeds along a country road, plastic bags are an eyesore, but so are newspapers and billboards and wind farms.

As for the rest, mostly it's a crock. The dump space occupied by plastic bags was minimal and now the plastic can be made to disintegrate, probably more quickly than the newspapers.

Besides, the old-fashioned plastic bags weren't even a callus on the environmental footprint of what's in your shopping cart.

Consider, to begin with, the plastic garbage bags you buy now to do the job your grocery bags could have done. (The Brown Dog Jiggs wonders what village dog-owners scoop poop into these days.)

Consider, also, the environmental cost of everything that goes into those cloth bags, the apples from Cape Town and the garlic from China, the smorgasbord of choices gathered from all around the world, in a way not much more than value-added petroleum.

There are the frozen entrees, sort-of-food in a plastic tray wrapped in cellophane enclosed in a cardboard box, a single meal surely the environmental sum of a dozen plastic bags.

Neil Campbell
Back of Beyond

Frozen salmon harvested in Chile, packaged in China, shipped to North America, dinner journeyed three-quarters of the way around the world.

As Pogo used to say in the comics, I have seen the enemy and it is us. Me, really, for I buy that touring salmon. The grocer didn't make me do it.

It is not the grocer who decides what we eat. We do. No environmental price is too high to pay for the pennies we save by buying lettuce flown all the way from California, for the pure pleasure of lamb from New Zealand.

Lettuce and lamb imported to Ontario, like bringing coals to Newcastle, the food often cheaper than its transport, but plastic or paper, we vote at the cash register.

Then we take home dinner in our stylish cloth bags and save the world.

You can buy a fully biodegradable copy of Neil Campbell's book, Cell Phones and Sap Buckets, in stores across the county and discard it later without remorse.

recruiter to fill a staff position.

All good points! The other three, the Vision team, thought it was prudent to do so as an expert was needed to fill this dual position. We had an excellent clerk who left because the workload demanded of her was unattainable without working unreasonably long hours into the evenings. How then can one person do these two jobs without a number of support staff? The motion was put to a vote with a result of 3 to 3. The reeve, who can only vote to break a tie vote, of course voted in favour of the motion along with her three Vision Team councillors. Once more we see the 4-3 vote! As a groan went through the crowd the reeve commented that we may not like the outcome but they were elected to represent the people of Minden Hills. She fails to realize that so were the other three councillors who sit through meeting after meeting only to see their votes mean absolutely nothing! When I asked the reeve if she has ever voted with the "other three councillors" she hesitated and finally answered that she couldn't recall a time when they had anything important to say to agree with! Wow! How insulting to these three who were elected by the people to represent Minden, Snowdon, and the entire municipality! Two of these three have past political experience while the Reeve's three members of her Vision Team are first term councillors. Interesting that they have all the right answers! I left the meeting disgusted!

NDP candidate excited for election

Jenn Watt
Editor

Politics has been not only a vocation and field of study, but also a lifelong passion for NDP candidate Don Abel.

A former MPP for Wentworth North and graduate of the Labour College of Canada, Abel, 59, hopes to step back into the political arena after a hiatus of more than 15 years.

"From 1995 on, I never lost interest in politics," Abel says during a campaign visit to Haliburton last week.

It was in the provincial election of 1995 that Abel lost his seat to his Conservative opponent in the southern Ontario riding that covered Dundas, Ancaster and Flamborough.

That time reminds him a lot of today.

Mike Harris's Commonsense Revolution swept the province that year and much of what the PC party is saying now reflects that same ideological bent, Abel says.

"People bought in to the populist vote of the day," he says, criticizing the logic behind personal income tax cuts proposed by PC leader Tim Hudak, who was a cabinet minister in the Harris government.

He suggested such tax cuts would have to impact services.

"The NDP want to spend smarter," he said.

The party's policy includes capping salaries for CEOs of government-owned companies, offering up to $5,000 for home energy retrofits and lowering small business taxes.

In 1998, Abel and his wife Debra moved to the Cameron area and now run Lakeview Cottages on Sturgeon Lake. Abel also works for the City of Kawartha Lakes as a licensing officer.

"This was like a dream come true to move up here," Abel said.

Their two children – Nicole and Mark – are in their 30s and Abel thinks it's a good time for him to get back into politics after a 16-year "rest."

One of his big concerns is changing the health-care system.

Excessive bureaucracy should be done away with, Abel said, calling the local health integrated network (LHIN) system "a terrible waste of money."

His family's intimate experience with the health-care system led him to believe it has been mismanaged by both the Liberals and Conservatives.

In 1992, Abel's son Mark was paralyzed in a snowmobile accident while in the U.S.

The situation brought him in closer than he would have liked with the Ontario – and American – medical establishments.

Mark spent 10 days in the States before he was airlifted across the border and in that time, racked up some $50,000 in medical bills.

Everything was itemized, right down to the swabs used to wet Mark's mouth.

"They literally took us aside and [asked us] how we would pay the bill," Abel said.

The family put their house up as collateral.

That stark situation spurs Abel on to advocate for a strong socialized health-care system.

But, he said, services have been declining in this province for years.

"I've seen the [home care] service decline since LHINs came in," he says. "It's a nightmare."

On a local level, the NDP candidate sees boosting tourism as one of the big issues along with more affordable housing and increasing the number of medications covered for seniors.

His party is also floating the idea of a "made-in-Ontario pension plan" that workers can opt-in to.

Aside from policy change, Abel just likes the job.

Having spent five years in the provincial legislature, he has more governmental experience than incumbent Liberal MPP Rick Johnson (who has been in for 2½ years) and nearly the same as former PC MPP Laurie Scott (who served for more than five) or newbie Green candidate Anita Payne.

"That gives me an advantage as well ... I've been there the longest," he said. "I know my way around Queen's Park."

Up against a relatively conservative riding, Abel is still optimistic.

"People are upset with Laurie Scott for giving up her seat," he said, referring to the 2009 byelection when Scott stepped aside to allow the leader of her party, at that time John Tory, a chance to gain a seat.

He lost to Johnson.

And as for Johnson, Abel thinks Liberal tax increases and climbing hydro rates have soured the population to his party.

Those two things have made space for a third candidate, Abel believes.

"Anything could happen," he said.

"I am looking forward to the election. It's been a long time."

Maple syrup producers invite public to learn about craft

Maple syrup producers can go back to school this fall when the Haliburton-Kawartha Maple Syrup Producers Association holds a workshop near here on Saturday, Oct. 1.

The day-long program at Camp Can-Aqua is open to anybody interested in learning more about making maple syrup.

You don't need to be a member of the association, whose territory includes the counties of Haliburton and Peterborough, the city of Kawartha Lakes and Durham Region.

Are you thinking about changing from buckets to tubing? Do you need some help with filtering sap, managing sugar-sand, and making your finished product sparkle?

What firewood should you use and what is the best strategy for managing the fire in your evaporator?

Experienced maple producers will lead discussions and demonstrate techniques that you can take home and apply to your operation.

This workshop is designed for all maple producers, large or small, young or old.

The program lasts from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., with time out for a light lunch paid for by your $15 registration fee.

Pre-registration deadline is noon Wednesday, Sept. 28. For more information or to register, please call Al King at 613-339-2969 or email info@canaqua.ca

Lunch will give beginners a chance to mingle with, and learn from, experienced producers who will be there to do some learning of their own.

A switch to buckets from tubing is a great labour-saver. After lunch, Al King and Dan Bierworth will explain how to plan and carry out a tubing installation, with an emphasis on the importance of gravity in planning your layout.

King and Bierworth will move the seminar into the Can-Aqua sugar bush to demonstrate tubing installation.

Exploring the power of the pen

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

A local gallery talk had people pondering the connection between letter writing and art.

There were more than 25 people who were treated to a philosophical journey into art with the backdrop of Andre Lapine's letters during the The Lost Art of Letter Writing presentation at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery's common room on Saturday, Sept. 18.

Gallery curator Laurie Carmount led the presentation that examined the letters of Latvian-born Lapine for artistic qualities of form, composition and structure.

She drew parallels in the manner and method he uses to explain and describe things within his letters, which reveal as much about him as a painter and a person.

This is the first showcase of the artist's letters and will be on display at the Minden gallery until Oct. 29.

Later in the talk, Carmount raised questions about the permanence of letters and traditional works of art such as paintings versus the new forms of art installation work and electronic communication.

The advance of communication technology brought email and text messaging, giving birth to a new language, making terms like LOL (laugh out loud) and OMG (oh, my God) commonly known and used. There is also an entire collection of symbols also being used, which could easily be perceived as an art form in itself.

Unlike the box of letters that a previous generation used to keep, what will this generation have to look back to? she asked.

The talk also led to discussion about the possibility of Letters written by Canadian artist Andre Lapine, who was born in Latvia, are being showcased at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden. The letters reveal his relationships and the artist in a new light. The exhibition runs until Oct. 29.

preserving art such as art installations. She referenced the work of Danish installation artist Olafur Eliasson, who is famous for bringing a sun into a gallery and erecting a giant waterfall on the East River in New York City. When the action is the art what is there left for a gallery to show generations later?

It had audience members (a large majority who were visiting Haliburton cottager Inese Flude, who invited all of her Latvian sorority sisters and partners) guessing about where the discussion would go next.

Architect Juris Zvidris, who was also visiting Flude, said he was amazed. He adds Carmount kept him guessing, as he never knew where the talk was going next.

The gallery curator said she is likely to host another event this coming spring.

Admission to the gallery is by donation.

Rocks left on gravestones at the St. Stephen's Church cemetery indicate a visit from a loved one, which started with Marian Gillander's family, who adopted the Jewish tradition when her niece married a Jewish man.

Remembering the forgotten

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

No one will ever forget as long as she is around.

Lee MacLean, a member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 636, believes every veteran should be remembered during Legion Week.

MacLean is on a quest to mark every grave of a veteran with a red poppy attached to a white cross marker during Legion Week (Sept. 18 to 24).

"Somebody has to do this otherwise they're going to be forgotten and they should not be forgotten ever as long as I'm alive," MacLean said.

This year she placed 78 white cross markers at St. Stephen's Church cemetery, St. Peter's Anglican Church cemetery and the Maple Lake United Church cemetery.

Back in the summer MacLean asked for the public's help locating the veterans buried through Canoe FM and in the Echo and Times.

"People know. It's just getting the information," she said.

Friends of St. Stephen's Church member and her sister-in-law Marian Gillander said the idea is originally from the Martin brothers, who lived across the road from the St. Stephen's Church. On a past visit to the grounds, Gillander was surprised to see the cross with the poppy at her parents' gravestone. Her dad Leonard was a radio operator and tail gunner for the Royal Air Force while mother Nan was an ambulance and truck driver for the Women's Air Force in the Second World War.

She never knew how the Martin brothers could have known they were veterans. She was compelled to carry on this tradition when both brothers died a few years ago.

The Martin brothers were also veterans themselves and are buried at the cemetery.

"It's kind of nice that our children, our grandchildren know that their [grandparents], great grandma and grandpa are here and it's a neat little thing that the little kids put a stone on their grave," Gillander said of her parents.

She said her family places a stone on the grave markers for loved ones to let them know they were there. Although this is a Jewish tradition that started because of her niece, who is married to a Jewish man, the MacLean family has adopted the tradition.

She's noticed other markers now have stones.

"I think people who have started doing it in here do it not because they're Jewish, but because they want to leave a little reminder that they were here," she said.

MacLean said her parents also served with the Royal Canadian Navy in the Second World War.

The markers will be up for the duration of Legion Week, which is until Sunday, Sept. 24.

She hopes to eventually have a marker for everyone that has served in the armed services.

"To me it's not just the war veterans. It's veterans. People who were in the armed services who served," MacLean said.

Contact MacLean by calling 705-489-1276 or email ladyaikido@cs.com and include the subject heading "veterans."

MacLean appreciates all of the feedback and help she had in this undertaking.

There are more than 400 branches with 130,000 members in the province that will observe this week to remember veterans.

MacLean said her Legion's Sgt.-at-Arms is looking into using the Legion's Last Post Fund to purchase gravestones for veterans buried at the Pioneer Cemetery, located beside the Ingoldsby Church. Neither has a gravestone.

MacLean points out many of the same surnames are seen at St. Peter's Anglican Church and St. Stephen's Church.

She hopes to ultimately show where and who all the veterans are in every cemetery in the county particularly those that don't have anyone left to do it.

"Some of these people don't have any family left so they need to be remembered somehow and to me it's a remembrance of what they did for us," MacLean said.

Provincial candidates square off on rising hydro costs

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Hydro rates are proving to be one of the main topics of discussion for this provincial election, affecting people in Haliburton County just as they are throughout the rest of the province.

Suzanne Slater operates Camp Diamond in Highland Grove and has been experiencing numerous problems with her electricity bills.

"I fight with the Ontario government all the time when it comes to this stuff," Slater said, explaining that Hydro One has been overcharging, sometimes more than double, since she installed a smart meter at the camp.

While she said her electricity costs are normally $1,500 to $1,600 for her operating season, she's recently fought individual bills of $1,500, $3,000 and $4,000 as the result of a malfunctioning smart meter.

Slater said she doesn't think the government should have a monopoly on hydro.

"There is no competition," she said. "Right now the Ontario government is in everyone's lives . . . where they don't need to be."

Slater spends part of the year living in the U.S. and says there, she has numerous utility companies to choose from.

"They actually have competitive rates," she said. "I think they also have to get rid of this debt retirement charge. Nobody gets to pay off my debt so why should I have to pay the Ontario government's?"

Ontario's debt retirement charge was introduced in the late 1990s as a means of dealing with the stranded debt left behind by the former Ontario Hydro. The collection of the fee was supposed to run to 2012, but has been extended until 2018.

Slater said she was not someone who thinks about life 150 years down the road, but rather is concerned about herself, her family and being able to afford to operate her business and said the party that was able to offer the lowest taxes would be getting her vote.

Green party candidate for Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock Anita Payne said her party realizes that smart meters have become a source of chagrin for many Ontarians.

"What the Green party wants to do is have people use technology to help them save on their electricity bills," she said.

Payne pointed to a company called Lowfoot, which manufactures a device that attaches to smart meters and displays electricity usage and said the party wants to help people transition into using this kind of technology.

The party believes in more investment in renewable power sources and moving away from nuclear power.

"Hydro and home heating costs in the province have been among the highest in the country and to make matters worse, the government introduced an unfair HST (harmonized sales tax) making it hard to manage our pocketbooks," NDP candidate Don Abel told the paper, adding his party would work to eliminate the provincial portion of the HST. "We will also focus on providing clean, efficient and affordable public power and invest in conservation and green energy before moving forward with new nuclear plants."

The party is also calling for new home retrofit programs.

"An Ontario PC government will give families a break by helping get their home energy bills under control," PC candidate Laurie Scott told the paper. "We will remove the provincial portion of HST from home hydro and heating bills, we will remove the debt retirement charge from home hydro bills and we will unplug those mandatory smart meters that force seniors to do their laundry in the middle of the night."

The party would also maintain the Ontario Clean Energy Benefit.

"I believe we need to pay down the hydro debt, but at the same time have programs in place to help those on low or fixed incomes," said Liberal incumbent Rick Johnson, adding that his party introduced the Ontario Clean Energy Benefit to help reduce electricity costs by 10 per cent for families, farmers, small businesses and seniors.

"We are fixing the underlying cause of high electricity prices, our broken electricity system," Johnson said, explaining the Liberals plan to upgrade the system by employing more clean energy practices.

He reiterated that the debt retirement charge was introduced by the PCs.

"Conservatives introduced a debt retirement charge, but didn't bother to pay it down," he said.

The election is Oct. 6.

Carpet bowling comes to Minden

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

The Minden Hills Community Centre is now offering carpet bowling. A demonstration of the sport hosted by the local district of the Ontario Senior Games Association drew a large crowd on Sept. 14 and carpet bowling will be offered at the centre on Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

A sort of cross between bocce ball and curling, the game is played in teams and competitors must throw their balls down a court of carpet attempting to get closest to the target, a small white ball called the jack.

Carol Williams, Lavern Newman and Fred and Renate Krieger of Cardiff – all medal winners at the 2010 Ontario Senior Games – showed the crowd how it was done.

Those interested are encouraged to drop by the community centre on Wednesdays to try out the game.

Pickleball takes place during the same hours.

The community centre will be getting its own carpet and balls courtesy of the legacy fund from the Winterfest Senior Games hosted in Haliburton County in February.

Competition in the Ontario Senior Games Association is for those 55 and older.

Special to the Times

Culture Days is a collaborative pan-Canadian volunteer movement to raise the awareness, accessibility, participation and engagement of all Canadians in the arts and cultural life of their communities. A national steering committee, together with provincial committees (known as Provincial Task Forces) self-mobilize at the grassroots level to implement concurrent, annual, province wide public participation events that take place throughout the country over the last weekend of September.

The first annual Culture Days event was held in September, 2010, in more than 700 Canadian cities and towns and, by all accounts, was a great success. The 2011 Culture Days weekend will take place Sept. 30 to Oct. 2. Annual, Canada-wide Culture Days events feature free, hands-on, interactive activities that invite the public to participate “behind the scenes,” to discover the world of artists, creators, historians, architects, curators, and designers at work in their community.

The Minden Hills Cultural Centre will be participating this year on Friday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. This year’s event will include the ongoing exhibitions at the three sections of the centre. The Minden Hills Museum features the exhibition on vintage books that were owned by local Mindenites. The R.D. Lawrence Place exhibition will be Letter of a Mentor showcasing some of the hundreds of letters Ron Lawrence received. Agnes Jamieson has two exhibitions: Dear André, a selection of letters from Lapine set out for visitors to read while viewing paintings from the permanent collection and Jay McCarten in Haliburton Highlands artist-in-resident paintings of this area.

Also at the centre artist Wendy Trussler will be doing a performance exhibition at the Haliburton County Library Minden Branch. This exhibition involves Trussler methodically going through personal correspondence in a piece that serves to examine the essence of why we keep letters. To this visitor can try their hand in the Common Room with real fountain pens in bottled ink to see whether they can master to true tools for letter writing.

During these two days Highland Media Arts will be showcasing work from their community projects. Artist will also be doing demonstrations.

This year the Agnes Jamieson Gallery is challenging the youth of this area to a Lego sculpture competition. There will be cash prizes awarded to first, second and third places. The age limit is 12 years of age and only one entry per child. For entry form and rules please go to the cultural centre website: www.mindenculturalcentre.com

Ross Rabjohn wins Lions Club draw

Melissa Alfano
Dorset News

melalfano@hotmail.com

Congratulations to Ross Rabjohn who won the Dorset Lions Club draw for $1,000 held at the annual Lions Club Fish Derby in early September. Thanks to all who bought and sold tickets for this great annual fund raiser supporting local community initiatives.

The fourth year for the Muskoka Ironman was completed on Sunday, Sept. 11.

Once again, a great group of volunteers manned the water station in Dorset and cheered these athletes along. Thank you to everyone who pitched in to help and to our residents and friends who welcomed everyone to the beautiful hamlet of Dorset.

The Dorset Lions Club is participating in the annual Lions Foundation of Canada Purina Walk for Guide Dogs. The walk is a national event with more than 200 walks across Canada.

This is the foundation's largest annual fundraiser and raises funds to help train guide dogs for Canadians with visual, hearing, medical or physical disabilities. Held primarily in the spring, the walks are organized by local volunteers with support from Lions Foundation of Canada and have raised more than $7 million since it began. Dorset Lions decided on a fall walk to support the cause (I'm assuming to avoid the black flies!).

Why walk for dog guides? To help provide dog guides to the growing number of Canadians who need them; to enjoy a fun day out in your community; walk with your friends, family, co-workers and dogs.

Each walk is organized by local volunteers (the Dorset Lions Club in this case) and is truly a grassroots effort. Everyone is welcome – all ages and abilities – and you are not required to complete the route to take part in the festivities.

Everyone is a winner and the money you raise goes towards this important program. There is no entry fee and you can feel good knowing that 100 per cent of your contribution goes towards the cause.

Since 1983, Lions Foundation of Canada has operated dog guides Canada to provide specially trained dog guides to more than 1,600 men, women and children from coast to coast. In addition to training dog guides for people who are blind or visually impaired, LFCDG also trains Dog Guides to meet the needs of Canadians with disabilities.

dog guides Canada operates five programs; canine vision dog guides, hearing ear dog guides, special skills dog guides, seizure response dog guides and autism assistance dog guides.

It takes many resources to raise, train and place a highly skilled dog guide.

From learning basic house manners to honing the skills required of them in service, it costs up to $20,000 to achieve this goal. LFCDG believes that no one should be denied their independence as an active member of their community.

To learn more about the Dorset event taking place on Saturday, Sept. 24 – meeting at the Dorset Recreation Centre to register at 8:30 a.m. with walk taking place at 9:30 a.m., contact Lion Andre at 705-766-2343 or have a look at www.purinawalkfordogguides.com. Credit card donations to the Dorset event can also be made on line at this website.

Birthday wishes for the week of September 18 to 24 go out to Emily Keown, Simon Douglass, Nancy Macdonald, Teresa Alexander, Erich Nash, Helen Avery and Happy Anniversary to Peggy and Don MacKay. ## Maple Fest this Saturday at the Lochlin United Church

September sure has been a busy month for me, full of birthdays to celebrate, my daughters, sister-in-law, and my Ma. Ma turned 85 this month and as usual wants nothing for her birthday....nothing! I wish it was that simple but knowing her as well as I do I, nothing means something. To give nothing would be getting me in trouble, big time. Not that I would ever even contemplate such a thing.

That said every year I have a real difficult time not picking something that she doesn't need, doesn't have room for or even wants. This year I decided to get her something to wear. Ma doesn't like low cut tops, sleeveless, gathered waists, the list goes on and on. Did I mention she won't wear black?

She has always been this way and lucky for me I found the perfect top in one of our stores in Minden. Lucky for me! This is a big hint for all of you – check out our local stores first!

This week is Nigel's birthday and this is going to be another trial. Nigel likes model trains, sports cars, boats and planes. Well, he won't be getting any of these things and will have to settle for something less.

After all isn't it the thought that counts!

Happy Birthday Nigel!

One of our neighbours would like to remind everyone of the upcoming Maple Fest this Saturday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Lochlin United Church.

I know that this isn't our immediate area but we are all one big happy family, aren't we?

Anyways it's an all you can eat pancake and sausage brunch, my favourite type of deal.

The charge for this brunch is adults $6, children $3 and preschool children get to eat for free.

They will also have a bake sale which is always a big treat; these people sure know how to tempt us.

Gather some friends and head out to Lochlin Road to the Lochlin United Church and enjoy your day.

Lung association asks public to make lung health an election issue this Oct. 6

Health-care costs assume about one-third of the entire provincial budget. One of the higher cost areas to watch relates to lung disease, which is very prevalent in our province. Diseases like asthma are so widespread, many people neglect to consider the hefty price tag that comes with them. For example, according to the latest research released by the Ontario Lung Association, 1.7 million adults and children in Ontario have asthma, with annual costs of up to $1.8 billion.

Asthma also has no cure but there are ways to manage it successfully. While it may appear mainstream to have every fourth or fifth kid in the classroom or on the soccer team carry a puffer, the question we need to ask before Oct. 6 rolls around is how can we deliver quality care to everyone with asthma and contain costs at the same time? The Lung Association has sound recommendations within its call to the government for a lung health action plan. Whether that call is answered remains to be seen. You can check out the full report, called Your Lungs, Your Life at www.on.lung.ca and get to know some of the issues.

Mark your calendars for Turkey Bingo Friday, Sept. 30

Patti Fleury
Around the Town

705-488-2938 Fax: 488-1246
brucefleury@nexicom.net

This past weekend found us enjoying a visit from cousin Margo and taking the opportunity to sit out on the patio at Bobcaygeon's Waters Edge for lunch and some serious boat watching. The final touch was ice cream cones at Kawartha Dairy which, in our opinion, should have been nominated along with the Bay of Fundy for this new group of UNESCO world wonders. Sharing grandson Ben's story of conflict with his new teacher over untied shoelaces Margo, a primary specialist for many years, told us of one little kindergarten fellow who cried every early fall morning outside her door. Finally a colleague asked him why he did not look forward to going into Mrs. Code's class? "Because she makes us eat healthy snacks" came the tearful reply.

To begin an apology to the Kinmount Legion branch 441 for an error in last week's column of event schedules. Please mark your calendars for the Turkey Bingo on the correct date of Friday, Sept. 30 at 6:45 p.m. with prizes of turkeys, hams and a $500 must go jackpot. Non-Legion members are also welcome to enter the car rally on Sunday, Sept. 25 with a 9 a.m. registration at the branch. The $20 fee per car includes lunch for the driver and the navigator plus prizes. Coming up on Saturday, Oct. 1 will be the popular annual dinner and loonie auction with everyone's favourite auctioneer Doug. The cost is only $10 for a delicious dinner, dessert and beverage. For those who enjoy darts, both members and non-members, sign up now for the fall/winter Dart Leagues with ladies playing on Monday nights and the mixed dart League on Wednesday nights.

Thanksgiving is fast approaching and with it the Harvest Homecoming in the Village celebrations on Saturday, Oct. 8. Events take place from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Railway Station yards so take this opportunity to enjoy an outdoor pancake breakfast from 8 to 11 a.m., visit the Kinmount Farmers' Market on its last day in 2011 and drop in to view the Kinmount Model Railway, tour town by horse and wagon and cast your vote at the pie baking contest. From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. try the barbecue grill also at the Station with proceeds donated to the Kinmount Sparks, Brownies and Guides. For the kids there will be crafts, face painting, a bouncy castle, games, and a bike-decorating contest along with a bike rodeo. Pie bakers are welcome to enter their homemade pumpkin or apple pies only and should bring two pies of the same type to the Railway Station by 9 a.m. Prizes will also be awarded in different categories for decorated pumpkins which need to be delivered for judging by 10 a.m. Vendor space for the Yard Sale should be booked through 705-488-2961 and is free but bring your own tables. There is also a Harvest Homestead Decorating Contest for homes and businesses. To enter call 705-488-2961 by Thursday, Oct. 6 then complete your fall theme by noon on Friday, Oct. 7.

The 17th annual Thanksgiving Harvest Homecoming Studio Tour sponsored by the Kinmount and Area Artisans Guild welcomes visitors to five locations to see the work of nine Guild members on Saturday, Oct. 8 and Sunday, Oct. 9 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. If you need a brochure/map pick one up at the Kinmount Artisans Marketplace or visit either www.kinmountartisans.ca or www.kinmount.ca then enjoy the fall colours following a pleasant route through Kinmount and along close-by country roads. Enjoy the hospitality and the great variety of local arts and handcrafts on display and available for gift giving or for your personal enjoyment. Please note that the Kinmount Artisans Marketplace continues open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. until Thanksgiving then returns to its extended weekend openings on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays only.

At the morning service this Sunday, Sept. 25 Kinmount United Church will celebrate its 144th anniversary with Rev. Walter Murray presiding. The service is at its regular time of 9:45 a.m. with the monthly Grandmothers Helping Grandmothers luncheon to follow at a $5 cost. Proceeds from the lunch are donated to the Stephen Lewis Foundation for its critical work assisting families affected by HIV/AIDS in Africa.

Until next week ...

Betty Trumbull

*We thought of you today
But that is nothing new
We thought of you yesterday
And will tomorrow too
We think of you in silence
And make no outward show
For what it meant to lose you
Only those who love you know
Remembering you is easy
We do it everyday
It's the heartache of losing you
That will never go away.
Sadly missed by Bernard,
Myles, Sandi Tyler & Jenna,
Judy & Mark*

Mintz, Caro

Silent thoughts of times together Hold memories that will last forever God broke my heart to prove to us He only takes the best.

Love remembered friend forever.
